

The Daily Courant.

Monday, March 9. 1713.

London, March 9.

Late on Friday Night last arrived a Mail from Holland.

From the Leiden Gazette, dated March 14.

Berlin, March 5.

A Magnificent Mausoleum is prepared in the old Chappel, to which the Corps of the late King is carried, to remain there till the Day of his Funeral, which is not yet fixed. The young King Frederick William the other Day assembled his Privy-Council, to communicate to them his Resolution to make a great Reform among the Officers of his Court, and to retrench their Salaries. It is reckoned that he will by this Means save 3 or 4 Millions of Crowns: But we are assured that he intends at the same time to augment his Troops to 38 Battalions and 32 Squadrons, that he may have 45000 Men on Foot, as well in time of Peace as War. Monsieur Creits is made a Minister of State. All the Colleges having appeared to Day in the Audience-Chamber in Mourning Cloaks, according to Order, M. Sturm made a Speech to his Majesty, who was on the Throne, in the Name of the Assembly, and the Surintendant on behalf of the Clergy. His Majesty in his Answer told them, they must each exactly observe the Oath they had taken before to his Father the late King. After which they were all admitted to kiss his Majesty's Hand.

Vienna, March 1. The Carnival ended here Yesterday. The Emperour holds frequent Councils on the present Posture of Affairs; And Prince Eugene has Conferences very often with the Ministers of the Allies which are in this Court. 'Tis said that the Council of War has given Advice, that M. Talman the Emperour's Minister, who was arrived at Adrianople, had received Orders from the Porte to retire, and that he is come to Belgrade. The last News concerning the King of Sweden is so various that we must be silent till we are better informed.

Frankfort, March 8. We expect speedily in the Neighbourhood of this Place some Thousands of the Imperial Troops: But 'tis said they will stay here for some Days, till they know whether they are to continue their March towards the Netherlands, or to remain on the Upper Rhine. The French continue to make great Preparations in Alsace for an early Campaign. They are also repairing the Ways from Metz to Hombourg and Keyzers Lauteren, by which the 40 Battalions of Recruits are to march, which are expected in Flanders. It appears by every thing very probable that their Design is to form the Siege of Landau. It is reported that they demand of the City of Mayence the Arrears of the Contributions, which amount to a considerable Sum.

Brussels, March 9. The Troops of the Allies which are furthest distant are in Motion to come and take the Quarters marked out for them between Gumbergue and Soignies. The Regiment of Ginkel arrived the other Day at Zellick, but was sent back to Malines. The new Fortifications of Mons and St. Guilain are carried on with Diligence, and the Country is laid under Water on the Side towards the Enemy. The Governour of Mons has again signified, that as he cannot keep the two Spanish Regiments of Daudignies and Devenitz in Discipline for want of their Pay, he wishes they might be paid or withdrawn, in Case of a Siege: Upon which our Council of State has demanded an Account of their Arrears from all the Collobels of the Spanish Regiments, in order to proceed on Means to pay them. The Enemy's Forces make great Motions on the Frontiers; but whether only in order to canton, or to execute immediately some great Design, is yet uncertain.

Paris, March 10. Advices from Strasbourg of the 2d Instant say, that the Review of our Troops in Alsace is begun, they being almost compleatly recruited, there being not above 3 or 400 Horses wanting for the Cavalry. The Magazines in our Frontier Towns are plentifully stored with Provisions and Ammunition, and a great Train of Artillery is mounting, to take the Field forthwith, and begin some considerable Enterprize. In the mean time 'tis not believed our Troops can be all assembled before the latter End of this Month, by reason of the bad Weather. Our Parties continue to make Incursions into the Enemy's Country with Success.

From the Brussels Gazette, dated March 14.

Brussels, March 14. The Forces, both Horse and Foot, which are to be cantoned in our Neighbourhood, arrive daily near this City. The Baron Fagel who commands in chief all the Troops of this Cantonment, came hither some Days ago, and will have his Head-Quarters at Anderlecht not far from hence. His Excellency has begun to dispose every thing and to give the necessary Orders to the Regiments as they arrive, and to dispose them into the several Posts and Villages assigned them. The 11th the Cantonment was begun to be formed; the Head of the Infantry is at Hali, and extends from thence through Gaesbeeck and Asche, and the Villages on the Canal situate at the same distance, covering on every side the Horse, which is quartered as it were in the Centre, and approaches nearest this City.

According to Advices from the Frontier, the Enemy's Troops are likewise in Motion to form their Cantonment, expecting the beginning of the Season to open the Campaign.
